DAY
1

Welcome to Dutchess County

Take the train from New York City up to Wassaic or drive directly to Troutbeck, our home for the next three nights. The guest list of this historic country retreat reads like a roster of great American authors—including Twain, Thoreau, and Emerson—but feels appropriately modern, and succeeds at balancing a sense of place with all the creature comforts. We'll get fitted to our bikes then head out for a first ride into the New York countryside. Ride the rail trail to Millerton, a sleepy little town experiencing a hip revival that's earned it the nickname "Williamsburg on the Hudson," where we'll stop for lunch before biking back to Troutbeck through pastures and farm fields. Tonight we kick things off with a welcome cocktail followed by a farm-to-table dinner.

Meals: Lunch / Dinner

Destinations: Wassaic, Millerton

Accomplished: 24 miles / 38 km, elevation gain: 1,854 feet / 565 meters

Longer Option: 34 miles / 54 km, elevation gain: 2,446 feet / 745 meters

2

Connecticut, Covered Bridges, and Home Cooking

This morning we pedal out of Troutbeck, across the Appalachian Trail, and into Connecticut's Housatonic River Valley. Follow the banks of the river to one of the state's three remaining covered bridges, built in 1842. From there, we'll slip back across the New York border, where our friend Sarah—an expert forager—welcomes us to her cabin in the woods. Enjoy a picnic lunch made with ingredients gathered from the surrounding area, then join her on a short foraging walk through the nearby forest. Our ride continues through the fertile farmlands of the Tenmile River Valley, passing quaint towns like Dover Plains and Wassaic, home to a bustling art community. Back at Troutbeck, enjoy the afternoon by the pool with time to relax before dinner at our favorite local eatery.

Meals: Breakfast / Lunch / Dinner

Destinations: Kent, Wingdale, Dover Plains

Accomplished: 22 miles / 35 km, elevation gain: 1,094 feet / 334 meters

Longer Option: 42 miles / 67 km, elevation gain: 2,250 feet / 686 meters

3

Farm-to-Table, Field-to-Glass

Today we ride north, stopping at the best local coffee shop and roaster for a truly perfect cup. Fueled up, we'll pedal along the newest section of the Harlem Valley Rail Trail and through beautiful farm country. Lunch is fresh and hyper-local, relying on ingredients from farms in the area, followed by a visit to a nearby distillery. The Hudson Valley was once the breadbasket (and therefore also the "liquor basket") of the young nation, where hundreds of small distilleries transformed their crops into grain alcohol. The distillery shares how it revived this tradition during a tour and tasting of their whiskeys and bourbons. Ride or transfer back to the hotel, where tonight we'll toast at a private dinner on Troutbeck's estate.

Meals: Breakfast / Lunch / Dinner

Destinations: Boston Corner, Ancramdale, Shekomeko

Accomplished: 25 miles / 40 km, elevation gain: 1,171 feet / 357 meters

Longer Option: 48 miles / 78 km, elevation gain: 2,398 feet / 731 meters

Accommodations: Troutbeck

4

Rhinebeck

Pedal west today towards the Hudson river through the heart of horse country, with its magnificent pastures and estates. Our destination is the historic town of Rhinebeck, founded by Dutch settlers in the 17th century and home to the oldest hotel in the country. Enjoy a final lunch at a relaxed foodie restaurant before transferring back to Troutbeck to say "see you later" to the Hudson Valley. For those taking the train, your guides will bid you farewell at the Wassaic station.

Meals: Breakfast / Lunch

Destinations: Bangall, Stanfordville, Rhinebeck

Accomplished: 25 miles / 40 km, elevation gain: 1,540 feet / 470 meters

Longer Option: 35 miles / 56 km, elevation gain: 2,365 feet / 673 meters
