Welcome to Puglia

Our guides meet you in Lecce and transfer you to the enchanting seaport of Otranto where our adventure begins. After we cover the essentials at a safety talk and bike fitting, we'll set out for our first ride. As you pedal past endless olive groves, you'll quickly understand why Puglia is the biggest olive oil-producing region in Italy. After passing through a series of small towns, our ride leads us back to the coast. Swim to your heart's content in the bright, clear waters of the Adriatic Sea, then get settled into our elegant hotel which was once a monastery. Tonight we'll experience the famous local flavor during our first Pugliese dinner.

Work up an appetite and savor freshly pulled local mozzarella at lunch, then transfer north to the Val d'Itria to check into our final hotel. The design of the property is anchored by its restored trulli, the conical stone structures unique to Puglia. Meet the chef this evening for an immersive cooking class, highlighting the flavors of Southern Italy. Later, throw off your aprons and sample the fruits of your labor while dining al fresco on the stunning grounds.

Then continue riding to Alberobello where we'll meet our friend Francesco to learn about the trulli. We'll savor a home-made lunch cooked by his mother and served in their private garden.
